

Spouse Education and Career Opportunities

Military spouses are a tremendous source of strength and talent with the ability to navigate the unique challenges of military life. They work to maintain a home and keep their families strong and resilient, often while pursuing an education or striving to build a meaningful career. Frequent relocations and extended deployments make this pursuit challenging. While military spouses are well educated and highly qualified for a wide range of careers, military spouses face a 26 percent unemployment rate and military wives face a 25 percent wage gap compared to their civilian counterparts.

Military Support Programs

To help military spouses reach their education and career goals as they balance work-life priorities and interests, the Department of Defense established a comprehensive, holistic, spouse-centered program called SECO: Spouse Education and Career Opportunities.

SECO provides career exploration opportunities to help spouses worldwide understand their skills, interests and goals; education and training to help them identify academic, licensing or credentialing requirements that can help them reach their career goals; employment readiness assistance to optimize their self-marketing skills; and employment connections that help them find and maintain a rewarding career. Resources include:

- The Military OneSource SECO Career Center where certified counselors provide comprehensive counseling services at no cost to all eligible military spouses.
- The Military Spouse Employment Partnership, a targeted recruitment and employment solution that creates employment connections by providing companies with direct access to military spouses seeking career opportunities and connecting spouses with employers who are actively recruiting.
- The My Career Advancement Account Scholarship, a workforce development program that provides up to $4,000 of financial assistance to eligible military spouses who are pursuing a license, certification or associates degree in a portable career field and occupation.
- SECO works with Installation Employment Readiness Programs where spouses receive face-to-face assistance and advice on career readiness, employment opportunities, educational and scholarship opportunities, and job search strategies.

COMMUNITY CONNECTIONS – Each military service plays a major role in supporting a military spouse's education and career progression and provides installation-based programs and services to any spouse from any service. To find the contact information for any of the installation employment readiness programs, spouses can visit the MilitaryINSTALLATIONS website. On the site, spouses can search by the specific program (Spouse Education, Training and Careers) and an installation or postal code to find the office closest to them. Program names may vary from service to service, but they all provide quality services.

SECO Outlook

SPOUSE AMBASSADOR NETWORK – Educating, empowering and mentoring military spouses to encourage career fulfillment is key to the mission of the Spouse Ambassador Network. By leveraging MSEP Partners and their existing community networks, the Spouse Ambassador Network will connect with fellow military spouses, community leaders, local Chambers of Commerce and other stakeholders in their communities to increase awareness about career and education resources, such as the Military Spouse Employment Partnership and the Military OneSource SECO Career Center.

INDIVIDUAL CAREER PLAN – Military spouses have the opportunity to develop an individual career plan with the help of a certified SECO Career Counselor. Counselors work one-on-one with spouses and discuss their career goals and objectives, the steps they need to take and what tools, resources and information are available to them for each phase of the SECO lifecycle. The plan integrates the spouse's work-related experiences, education and job preferences and provides a clear career path to help spouses arrive at their ultimate career goal.
